Community Development Resources' Website provides 8 Steps to do Business with the Government

It seems that somewhere in the $787 billion dollar stimulus package, there should be some dollars for your business. Community Development Resources has added information on its Tools for Business website on how to conduct business with the government. Included are these eight steps:

1. Look locally. Contact your city and county public works departments to find out how they publish bid opportunities. Ask what projects they have submitted for federal stimulus money.
2. For state and national bid opportunities, get your business certified.
 - o Self-certifications: The federal government recognizes small businesses (SBE), women-owned (WBE), and disadvantaged (i.e. minority) businesses (SDB). The SBA has established two widely used size standards for small business:
 1. Fewer than 500 employees for most manufacturing and mining industries, and
 2. Less than $7 million in average annual receipts for most nonmanufacturing industries.

There is no formal certification process, but on request, you need to provide proof that you satisfy the size and for WBE and SDB's the ownership requirement.

- o HUB zone businesses. If your business is located in a low-income area, you may be eligible for preferential bidding on federal projects. Go to <https://eweb1.sba.gov/hubzone/internet/index.cfm> to see if you are in a HUB zone.
- o SBA 8(a) program for minority businesses. The SBA 8(a) program provides direct help in obtaining federal contracts. Participants must have been in business at least 2 years and have assets less than $750,000. For more information, visit <http://www.sba.gov/aboutsba/sbaprograms/8abd/index.html>. To apply, visit <http://www.sba.gov/aboutsba/sbaprograms/8abd/application/index.html>.
- o US Department of Transportation recognizes veteran-owned small businesses. For more information, visit <http://osdbu.dot.gov/about/customers.cfm#VOSB>.
- o Nebraska Department of Roads recognizes Disadvantaged Business Enterprises (DBEs) for federally funded projects. For the application, visit <http://www.dor.state.ne.us/letting/dbeinfo.htm>.
- o The state of Nebraska does not have minority or disadvantaged business programs.

3. Even if you are not certified, register on CCR. The federal government uses CCR (Central Contractor Registration). You can register at <http://www.ccr.gov>. You can do a search on existing registered businesses at http://web.sba.gov/pro-net/search/dsp_dsbs.cfm.
4. Look for large opportunities and sign up for email notifications. Federal opportunities for $25,000 and more can be found at <https://www.fbo.gov>.

Nebraska bid opportunities can be found at <http://www.das.state.ne.us/materiel/purchasing/rfp.htm>.

5. Look for sub-contracting opportunities. The government bid process can take six months. It is often faster to find sub-contracting opportunities with companies that have already received a government contract. You can find federal sub-contracting opportunities at http://web.sba.gov/subnet/search/dsp_search_option.cfm.
6. Network and market your business to find opportunities under $25,000. All purchases under $100,000 are supposed to go to small business. Federal agencies use credit cards for purchases of $2,500 or less. For purchases between $2,500 and $25,000, they must obtain quotes from at least three vendors.

In Nebraska, agencies may make direct purchases up to $10,000 without a bid process. Purchases between $10,000 and $25,000 are made through competitive informal bids, managed by the State Purchasing Bureau. All purchases above $25,000 are made through formal, sealed, competitive bids.

7. Use small business liaisons. Federal agencies have small business liaisons who help small businesses with the procurement process.
8. Get help through PTAC or SBDC. PTACs (Procurement Technical Assistance Centers) provide free assistance in marketing products and services to government agencies. Visit <http://www.dla.mil/db/procurem.htm> to find the PTAC nearest you. You can also contact your local SBDC (Small Business Development Center) for free assistance with government contracting. Visit <http://www.asbdc-us.org> and search for your local SBDC by zip code.
